

Rory Goreé

Greyhounds and greyhound adoption are two of my great passions, as many of you know. Over the past few years, I've become the target of numerous personal attacks by certain animal rights groups that oppose greyhound racing and work to undermine the efforts of mainstream adoption groups. This has riled up my Russian temper, causing me (on occasion) to go off the rails and express myself in ways that were probably not appropriate or thoughtfully considered.

However, as a racing regulator appointed by the Governor, I realize that I must be more careful in my public statements. My job is to make sure that racing in Arizona is clean, well-regulated and (most important to me) humane. I plan to focus on that goal from this point forward, so don't be surprised if you notice a new, more civil tone to my comments.

To those whom I may have offended in the past, I offer my sincere apologies. While my opinions are unlikely to change, you will see a change in the tone of my public statements. We need more civility in this world, and I for one plan to do my part.
